

I would like to put my support behind the Rm-10787 as I believe the VE group by the quality of their past testing has demonstrated the both the ability and willingness to make sure that our Amateur operators are among the highest quality in the world. I believe that although code is a viable mode of communication that it is now obsolete and its inclusion in testing does not make anyone a better Amateur. I also believe that the USA should continue to be a LEADER and not a follower. Lets drop the code and concentrate on making out written tests the best that can be written so we can Lead the World in Amateur radio. thanks and 73's Phil Brazzell KU4AB
